LGBTQA Resource Center Volunteer (RCV)

What do Resource Center Volunteers do?

- Donate their time to learn information, attend meeting (1 per week), and assist in the planning, implementation and participation in other programming and events. Examples:
  - Chalking the Plaza
  - LGBTQA History Month dinner
  - Lavender Graduation
  - Booths for campus events
- Serve as leaders on campus who perform a worthwhile service to the UNL campus and Lincoln community.
- Learn to provide accurate, comprehensive and current information in an inclusive and nonjudgmental manner. Be aware of the information and resources that the LGBTQA Resource Center has to offer the UNL community.
- Maintain confidentiality – personal information or circumstances shared with you as an RCV are not to be shared without permission from the person providing the information.
- OutSpeaking – a collaborative effort with the Speakers Bureau to provide panels for classes, organizations and groups on campus and the community.
- Follow through with commitments made to the Resource Center.

What is required to be Volunteer at the Resource Center?

- Commitment to staffing the LGBTQA Resource Center or programming for one academic year.
- Attend a weekly meeting, trainings and designated activities.
- Actively participate in making UNL a campus that is committed to diversity and inclusion for all people of all sexual orientations, gender identities, and expression.
- Be dedicated, honest, open-minded, dependable, and have an interest in social justice.
- Represent the Resource Center well.

What can you get out of being a Resource Center Volunteer?

- Work-related experience and leadership skills
- An opportunity to get involved and interact with others who share similar interests
- An opportunity to contribute toward building and sustaining a socially just campus community

What can happens after I turn in this Volunteer Form?

After you turn in the form, feel free to begin coming to our volunteer meetings which change from semester to semester. We will communicate with you primarily through email and Facebook. Above all else, Welcome!
